They liaise with community pharmacies and make the whole process of ordering and collecting your prescription more efficient. They help reduce waste and support safety audits.

Social prescribing link workers

- Your social prescriber will talk with you to understand your needs and discuss what help and support is available
- If you have a problem that is not medical, the social prescriber can connect you to appropriate support and find ways for you to feel more in control of your health and wellbeing and a part of your community.
- You can be referred to a social prescriber by your GP or any other member of staff at your practice

Leek & Biddulph Primary Care Network

LEEK AND BIDDULPH PCN

INTEGRATING GENERAL PRACTICE, LOCAL COMMUNITIES AND PATIENTS

What is Leek and Biddulph Primary Care Network (PCN)?

- It is the five GP surgeries in Biddulph and Leek working together with a range of local providers, including community services, social care and the voluntary sector, to offer more personalised, coordinated health and social care
- We are small enough to maintain the traditional strengths of general practice but at the same time large enough to provide resilience and support the development of new teams
- We have a collective patient population of just over 50,000
- There is recognition that the two geographic areas of Biddulph and Leek will at times have differing healthcare needs, and flexibility in health service provision has been built into the PCN design to accommodate for this

What difference does the primary care network make to the patient?

- We provide care in different ways to match different people's needs. This includes access to advice and support for 'healthier' sections of the population, and joined up care for those with complex conditions
- Extra services are offered locally at each GP Practice and there is no need to travel outside of your normal GP Practice area
- We recruit extra specialist clinical staff to work alongside existing practice staff. Including Social Prescribers, Pharmacists, Dieticians, Occupational Therapists and Physiotherapists
- We offer improved access to services and extend the range of current services available to you
